BOOK SYNOPSIS

Dr. Victoria Von Dietz's arrogant husband betrays her when he beds a flirtatious coed. Her feminist and antiwar views keep her from getting tenure. Meanwhile she's infatuated with American pragmatic philosopher George Herbert Mead and German existentialist Martin Heidegger, both dead. So, when Victoria discovers she has the ability to escape her life and travel back to the time of her favorite philosophers, even if it means landing in Nazi Germany, she takes the plunge. Her journey finds her married to Mead but still infatuated with Heidegger, despite their conflicting philosophies. Meanwhile Annabelle Carter Jackson, head of a federal grant agency, funds Victoria's research and urges her to kill Adolf Hitler. But once there, she can't decide whether to do the deed or inspire Hitler to change his views. Author Valerie Benz takes her interest in the two late philosophers to a new level in her philosophical and historical romance novel, Flesh and Mind: The Time Travels of Dr. Victoria Von Dietz. Is someone's attraction to a philosopher's work only intellectual, a matter for the mind, or is it deeply emotional as well? Can the right person change one of history's most dangerous characters? This may be a romance novel, but it boldly tackles some lofty questions.
